The Bridge City development, north of Durban, is gaining momentum and continues to attract increasing interest as a decentralised residential/commercial town centre hub and industrial/business estate, both able to accommodate growing demand. The demand for mixed-use facilities has been demonstrated by the eThekweni Municipality recently acquiring development rights over five town centre sites that have been identified for social housing opportunities, and Tongaat Hulett says that this is a further piece of the puzzle that builds on the collaboration between itself and the city to establish Bridge City as a fully functional, mixed-use town centre able to meet the region's current and growing needs. The shopping centre and regional magistrate's court are already operational and a 500-bed regional State hospital is under construction, while work on a 150-bed private hospital and nursing home will start soon. Local KwaMashu-based developers have also bought the rights to develop a six-storey mixed-use building, which also includes a petrol filling station.
